THURSDAT AND LADOR 4, 1865. MORNING EDITION.

DAILY LEADER. The Latest News THUSSDAY, BAY 4, 1865.

The latest news from Europe give still further accounts of the immense excitement produced in England and France by the news of the fall of Richmond. The Eng lish papers, of which the telegraph has given us abstracts and some selections from which appeared in yesterday's Luanus. are nearly unanimous in the opinion that the rebellion cannot survive this last and crushing blow. A few however persist with determination worthy a better cause in hoping against hope. The Sun thinks that Lee will invade the North. Ere this it has probably changed its opinion-The Index, distinctively the rebel organ, declares that only the first act of the war is played, and thinks that there is hope for the South in the second act. Nobody seems to have expected the immediate surrander of Lee, and that news will probably create a vet profounder sensation.

The French Government and news papers, whose whole American policy is concentrated in Mexico, receive the news, as is very natural, with ill-conceale chagrin. The French, like the English press does not seem to contemplate the possibility of Lee's surrender, and predicts terrible, inexorable guerrilla warfare. The interesting proceedings in the French Corps Legislatif, which we printed yesterday, the eloquent ples of M. Pelletan for the North, and the manner in which he was silenced by a brutal majority, will attract universal attention.

Both England and France appeared very anxious to learn something concerning the foreign policy now to be pursued by the French Government has sent new instructions to M. de Montholon, enjoining upon

She felt that she could not find words strong enough to express her condemnation of them. [Applause.] She demanded that justice, stern, inflexible fustice should be meted out to them. In behalf of outraged law this should be done. Their crimes have rendered them unworthy of the respect of honest men. Hanging should be their deserts.
